

TCL presents James Whittaker on "All that testing is getting in the way of quality".

On November 11th, TCL present an opportunity to hear a presentation by Dr. James Whittaker, Engineering Director at Google.

James has spent his career focusing on testing, building high quality products, and designing tools and process at the industrial scale. Previously he worked for Microsoft.

In the not so distant past, James was a professor of computer science at Florida Tech where he taught an entire software testing curriculum and issued computer science degrees with a minor in testing. Following that he started a consulting practice that spanned 33 countries. He has trained thousands of testers worldwide.

He's also written the set of books in the How to Break Software series. It is not a stretch to say that he is one of the most recognisable names in the industry and has had a deep impact on the field of testing.

Join TCL and uTest to hear James speak on 11th November at 1 Alfred Place, London, WC1E 7EB,

11:00am arrival for a 11:30am start
12.30pm buffet lunch
2pm - finish

Don't miss out on this fantastic opportunity to meet an acclaimed industry expert and author.

Please RSVP to holly.baynton@tcl.eu.com

www.tcl-global.com

© 2011