PEST stands for the pub exploration of software testing. We hold regular events in various pubs across the UK and USA where software testers can meet and discuss ideas, lessons learnt and factors affecting the testing community. The events are informal and open to all.

As anyone who has previously attended will tell you; these events are fun, informal and a great way to meet others in your industry and with team activities designed to improve your testing knowledge, testing ability and problems solving skills PEST covers all essential expert tester attributes.

All event's run by TCL are in support of the NSPCC. To find out how you too can make a difference please go to:
